

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

FOREWORD

THE BOOK OF ST. LOUISANS was first published in 1906, receiving a most gratifying reception. It was recognized at the outset as an invaluable book, alike in the business office and in the home. Time has confirmed this favorable opinion on the general merits of the work, its comprehensiveness and its accuracy. As a book of ready reference, it has from the first been in constant requisition. The up-to-date merchant, the professional man, the alert inquirer, whatever his vocation, keeps this handy volume upon his desk, within easy reach.

A new edition, revised and brought down to date, has been called for, and the present volume is presented as the best possible response to that demand. This edition contains many names not listed in the earlier issue—names unavoidably overlooked in a first edition, as well as a large number representing new residents of St. Louis, and others who have come into prominence since the first edition was printed. The work of revision has been painstaking and thorough. Not only have many names been added, but each of the original sketches has been rewritten in order that the best possible arrangement of the data for easy reference purposes might be secured.

A casual examination of these pages will disclose not only the presence of many new names, but also the absence of names which appeared in the earlier issue. The omissions are accounted for by reason of death (THE BOOK OF ST. LOUISANS being confined to living men only), removals from the city, impossibility to find present addresses, and a few because they are no longer regarded as of sufficient importance.

The names of those whose life-sketches appeared in the first edition, but who have died or have been dropped for various reasons, have been inserted in this volume in their original alphabetical place, with a reference to the volume of 1906, in which the biographical sketch appeared, and, if deceased, the fact has been noted, with the date of death, when known.

This feature will be of particular value to those who may wish to secure reliable biographical information about many men who were prominent in the business or social life of St. Louis in the opening years of the twentieth century, but who have passed to the "great beyond," leaving no other printed record of their life-work.

In the remaking of THE BOOK OF ST. LOUISANS—for this is practically a new book from beginning to end—every source of available names has been drawn upon and every reasonable effort has been made to procure the requisite data from all who were deemed eligible for inclusion. Nevertheless, names which should have been included will be missed; but in practically all such cases the omission is not in the least due to inadvertence or the lack of effort on the part of those having the preparation of the book in hand. Not only were written requests sent by mail, but they were supplemented by personal solicitation when occasion required. The great majority of those applied to responded freely and in a courteous manner. To these, thanks are hereby extended. A few, however, furnished information with evident reluctance, while others showed complete indifference, and some let the request for data go wholly unnoticed.

Some names which frequently appear in the newspapers are conspicuous by their absence, for the reason that THE BOOK OF ST. LOUISANS has endeavored to include only men of reputable vocation and high standing.

Notwithstanding the reasons named, which prevented the inclusion of many persons, the publication may make just claim to greater completeness, a greater degree of interest, and a more dependable and authoritative record in regard to the leaders in the business, professional, industrial, official, and intellectual life of St. Louis than has ever before been collected.

To make such a publication ~~dependable~~ it is necessary that it should be unpurchasable. THE BOOK OF ST. LOUISANS has been compiled as a permanent reference book, and all of the sketches in the volumes have been inserted with that fact in view. Not one has been paid for, nor inserted for any financial consideration.

To secure accuracy, the greatest care has been taken. In every case where possible, the facts were procured at first hands, and the sketches were submitted for verification and correction, thus giving to the book a quality practically autobiographical. In this painstaking way its authenticity has been safeguarded and its value as a reference book greatly enhanced.

The volume has been confined to living subjects, because the purpose from the first has been to furnish a dictionary of contemporaries and to mirror the current progress and history of the city as reflected in the life-statistics of its citizens. The main object of bringing them together in this compilation is to place within easy reach such legitimate information in regard to the personal history of St. Louisans as it is natural that one interested in them should desire to possess.

During the daily work and turmoil of life, in this city of strenuous endeavor and achievement, one finds but little opportunity to get acquainted with those whose personalities are (outside of his own most intimate circles) of most interest. The reader can doubtless think of many leading citizens of whom he would like to know: Where did they come from; where and how were they educated; what is their home life, their religious, social, and political environment; and what have been the chief steps in their career? If the reader will turn to such names, he will find just the information desired.

Many and varied are the interests controlled or represented by those whose life-histories are here outlined. Business and professional lines are most largely represented, because St. Louis is, beyond everything else, a business center. The city has made unprecedented strides toward business supremacy, standing first in many and prominent in all of the important branches of trade, production, and professional effort. Therefore this volume partakes largely of the nature of a business dictionary, and contains more personal information about the living business men of St. Louis than can be found collectively in all other books ever printed. Business men can find here much that they never knew about their competitors and customers, together with a vast amount of personal knowledge in regard to their fellow citizens which is of value from a business as well as from a social standpoint. In fact, in all lines of useful achievement, the book furnishes as complete a compendium and epitome of personal data in regard to those St. Louisans most prominently identified with the best movements and interests of the city as it has been possible to procure by patient care, experienced methods, and large expenditure.

To the press of St. Louis and other cities, this volume presents features of easily recognized usefulness. Here the newspaper man will find facts which are of great value, and by the use of the book in the city room the exasperating errors resulting from hasty picking up of details from unreliable sources may be in large measure avoided. The truth is here plainly stated, every item being presented in concise, condensed form, so that it may be at once grasped and understood.

In number and representative selection of subjects, accuracy of detail and authoritative usefulness as a work of reference, it is confidently claimed that THE BOOK OF ST. LOUISANS is the most complete compilation of St. Louis biography ever printed. Not only is this true, but by far the larger part of the information it contains is not procurable, in print, from any other source.

The volume contains five or six times as many biographical sketches of representative St. Louisans as can be found in any other publication. While it is not claimed that the book represents infallibility or inerrancy, it is confidently put forth as the best that has so far been produced among books of local and contemporary biography in this city.

THE BOOK OF ST. LOUISANS is multum in parvo. It contains much in small compass. It is the best possible introduction that one can have to St. Louis, and the manifold activities of the city. It is a book of reference in the strictest sense of the term. By consulting its contents, even the oldest resident can acquire fresh information, and learn much about his city and his business associates which he has not known before.

GEORGE BAIN.

A Prominent St. Louisan Dies Suddenly—His Career.

George Bain, a well-known business man, Chairman of the Republican Central Committee, and a man who has always been a friend to St. Louis, died at 2:45 yesterday morning at the family residence, No. 3138 Morgan street. About a year ago Mr. Bain suffered a severe fall, breaking two ribs. This injury developed acute rheumatism. He never complained, however, and up to ten days ago gave his personal attention to business and politics. About that time he was seized, while presiding over a meeting of the Republican Central Committee, with rheumatic pains in the region of the heart. So severe was the attack that it was with the utmost difficulty that he reached his home. He was obliged to remain in bed, but for the last few days he appeared convalescent, and his physicians held out hope of his speedy return to the duties. Wednesday night word was brought to the committee over which he presided that he would soon be able to resume his position. He went to sleep that night and passed away without waking.

Dr. I. N. Lowe, the attending physician, states that the cause of death was acute congestion of the lungs and brain.

President Bernheimer, of the Merchants' Exchange, yesterday appointed the following members of the Merchants' Exchange to act as pall-bearers: Alex. H. Smith, Mr. Bain's life-long friend; D. P. Slattey, John Wahl, Henry C. Haastlick, Andrew Warren and F. N. Judson. Mr. Bain was a charter member of Compton Hill Council, No. 9, Legion of Honor. The interment will take place Saturday afternoon, and will be private. The house will be thrown open to friends of deceased between the hours of 9 and 11 Saturday morning.

George Bain was born May 5, 1836, in Sterling Castle, Scotland. His education was conducted at the grammar school of Sterling, and comprised, in addition to the usual branches of an English education, a full course of classics and the higher branches of mathematics. In 1851 his father emigrated with his family to Canada. Young George remained in Montreal, his father proceeding to the Upper province, entering business at Pictou, on the Bay of Quinte. In Montreal young George remained for three years in the employ of James Court, land agent and accountant. He next passed one year in Portland, Me., in the commission house of Mackintosh & Co. Then he removed to Chicago, where he obtained a situation in a large commission house. In 1856 he formed a partnership with a Mr. Clarke in the commission business under the style of Bain & Clarke, which commercial venture was brought to an untimely end by the financial difficulties of 1857. In 1858 Mr. Bain came to St. Louis with a Mr. Urdike, of the firm of Gilbert, Urdike & Field, in the capacity of salesman. In November of the same year, in connection with Messrs. Kehlor and Urdike, he opened a house in New Orleans, and transacted a large flour and grain business. This branch of the business was known as Kehlor, Urdike & Co. In January, 1866, Mr. Bain was admitted as a partner in the St. Louis branch of the business, and the firm title was changed to Urdike, Field & Co. On the 1st of January, 1867, the connection with the Chicago house was severed, and the firm became Urdike, Bain & Co. In December of the same year he sold out his interest in the New Orleans house, concentrating his whole attention and capital in St. Louis, buying out his partners and changing the firm name to George Bain & Co. In 1869 he admitted his brother, Wm. B. Bain, to partnership, and in 1871 purchased one-half interest in the Atlantic mill, corner of Main and Plum streets, which was turning out at that time 800 barrels of flour daily. In 1874 he shipped and personally accompanied 30,000 barrels of flour of his own manufacture to the European markets, the first direct shipment of flour from St. Louis to Europe that is recorded in the commercial history of St. Louis. He carried on the Atlantic mill, doing a large foreign trade until some ten years ago, when the institution was destroyed by fire. He rebuilt the plant and continued business up to five years ago.

three and a half barrels of flour daily. In 1871 he shipped and personally accompanied 30,000 barrels of flour of his own manufacture to the European markets, the first direct shipment at that time from St. Louis to Europe that is recorded in the commercial history of St. Louis. He carried on the Atlantic mill, doing a large foreign trade until some ten years ago, when the institution was destroyed by fire. He rebuilt the plant and continued business up to five years ago, when he transferred the mill to the Leavenworth Mill Company. He continued with this latter firm as general manager, superintendent and buyer until about fourteen months ago, when he resigned to accept the government position which he held at the time of his death, as United States Chief Special Agent of Manufacturing Statistics of St. Louis.

In all public enterprises and in all matters relating to State and municipal government Mr. Bain always took a prominent and useful part. He was one of the Executive Committee of the Grain Association, a Director in the Second National Bank, Citizens' Insurance Company, Chamber of Commerce Association and many other important organizations. He was closely connected with the welfare of St. Louis in its mercantile relations. He was Vice President of the National Board of Trade and in 1913 was President of the Merchants' Exchange. He was a member of the Board of Aldermen from the Fourth Ward from 1890 to 1894, and was considered one of the most energetic members of that body. In 1874 he was First Vice President of the Millers' National Association and President of the Missouri State Association. Upon the death of George F. Plant he was ex-officio President of the national association, to which office he was elected in 1878. In 1874 he was also President of the Union Steam Mill Company, which turned out 400 barrels of flour daily.

In 1837 Mr. Bain was married to Miss Clara Mather of Yorkville, Ill., and five children are the fruit of the union.

The Republican Central Committee held a special session yesterday afternoon to take action on the death of George Bain. There were present, in addition to the committee, many representative business men. A. J. Davis announced to the committee the death of Mr. Bain, and touched feelingly on the many virtues of the deceased. Mr. W. T. Woodruff read a preamble and resolutions, and also denounced the traducers of the name who had spent his life and fortune for the welfare of St. Louis. His disrepute the necessary animosity and bitterness which peacefully and vindictively resented and persecuted him during the last few days of his life and up to the time of his death. The resolutions were unanimously adopted, and a copy ordered sent the bereaved family. Eulogistic addresses were delivered by Mark R. Chartrand and Wm. A. Hobbs. The Executive Committee has ordered a floral offering with the words, "Our Chairman," worked on it, to be placed on the coffin by the Republican Central Committee, who will visit the home in a body.

All the late special agents of the census who served under Mr. Bain will meet in his late home at 12 o'clock to-day, and will make similar steps.

Mr. Bain was the Southwestern agent for the Northern Miller, with which paper his son, Walter, is connected. He leaves a widow and four children in comfortable circumstances. George O. Bain is with the United Press at Washington, and the body will be embalmed and kept until his arrival here.

Presents an original theory of the formation of the solar system, which has been accepted by all astronomers instead of La Place's nebular hypothesis. It classifies man into four races—White, Yellow, Brown and Black. This classification is generally accepted in the United States instead of Caucasian, Mongolian, Ethiopian, Malay and Indian. It describes the great inventions of ancient times with the names of the inventors, who became the "universal gods," and presents the origin of all of our principal ideas, both "good" and "bad," and gives the underlying cause of the decay of nations; and by tracing ideas instead of men, the author claims to elucidate a new science—Ideology.
